Aged Educator Is Still in Touch With Kidnapers of Baby

Returns Wednesday Morning From Mysterious Night Journey

$20 BILL IS PASSED

New York Police Seeking Identity of Persons Having Money

HOPEWELL, N. J.—(AP)—Dr. J. F. Condon, Sr., who signed the name "Jafsie" to classified advertisements to establish connection with the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby, says he is still in touch with the kidnapers of the child in a renewed effort to place the tot's arms "around his mother's neck."

Condon, an aged educator, indicated that new negotiations are under way to get the baby from the persons who took the $50,000 ransom and then ran out on their promise to restore the baby, as he returned Wednesday morning from a mysterious night journey.

In a statement Wednesday morning, Dr. Condon said "I'm convinced that I had contact with the kidnapers and I still have contact with them."

"I have never identified them or said a word against them."

"My life would not be worth anything if I said anything against them."

WASHINGTON—(AP)—One of the $20 notes, paid to the Lindbergh kidnapers is reported to have been passed in New York City and turned over to the New York police by the United States secret service bureau.

Suspect Is Arrested

THOMAS, Ont.—(AP)—A man claiming to be D. D. Dickinson of New York City, was arrested Wednesday in connection with the Charles A. Lindbergh kidnaping.

Police said the man carried letters addressed to Colonel Lindbergh and Mrs. Dwight Morrow, mother of Mrs. Lindbergh, together with carbon copies of telegrams believed to have been sent to Colonel Lindbergh.

Little Convicted On Fraud Charges

Arkansan, Former President of Citizens Life, to Be Sentenced Today

HUNTSVILLE, Ala.—(AP)—Joe F. Little, of Eureka Springs, Ark., former president of the defunct Citizens Life Insurance Company of Huntsville, was found guilty of using the mails to defraud in a verdict of a federal court jury Tuesday night in his trial on charges growing out of the failure of the company.

Little's son-in-law, J. Marry Moore of Los Angeles, the only other defendant whose case was passed on by the jury was acquitted.

The list of defendants was cut to two in the afternoon when Judge W. I. Grubb, holding that the prosecution had not made a case against them, directed dismissal of three of the accused.

Those freed by the judge's order were A. W. Briscoe of Montgomery, Ala., W. P. Patterson of Pea Ridge, Ark., and A. G. Ingalls, Eureka Springs, Ark.

Little and five others who pleaded guilty prior to the opening of the trial will be sentenced Wednesday.

Moore, Ingalls and Patterson, the first witnesses called after the government had rested, explained their association with the Citizens Life Company.

Moore testified he was employed by the company as an office helper, soon after its organization, and later advanced to general manager. He identified shares of stock which he said he signed, made out to himself and turned over to Little as a favor.

Ingalls and Patterson said they were not connected directly with the company, but were employed by its subsidiaries. Egbert E. Randal, Little Rock, one of the five former officials, who pleaded guilty, said he was one of the company's organizers, but that his work had been principally with its subsidiaries in Texas.

The cases against the remaining defendants were placed in the hands of the jury late in the afternoon and the jury had not reported early Tuesday night.

U. S. Loans Must Cover 48 States

Pro Rata Has to Be Cut Down This Year, Word to Co. Committee

The Hempstead County Loan Committee has received the following communication from the Memphis Loan Office regarding the federal policy on 1932 crop loans:

"As a first principle, it is our desire to make loans on a basis equitable both to the borrower and to the government, realizing that an inadequate financing program is of no avail to the borrower; on the other hand, we want to make collectible loans."

"We are taking into consideration in passing on loans (1) the departmental regulations, (2) the borrower's ability to pay, as reflected from his application, basing our conclusions on the result of his crop production for the year 1930 and 1931, and on his program for the year 1932, basing his ability to repay, of course, on the present crop prices, (3) the committee's character recommendation—his present indebtedness and labor available."

"We find in some sections that borrowers are expecting to get loans in amounts and on the same basis as in prior years. We must keep in mind that the cost of producing a crop this year will be much below the cost of 1930 and 1931, and the value of farm products has declined considerably."

"We are keeping in mind money available. In 1931 the Memphis office loaned on 120,000 applications, in round numbers, $22,000,000 out of approximately $47,000,000 appropriation that was used in drought areas of the United States. This year money available must be divided among the seven regional districts comprising 48 states."

"We appreciate the splendid work that the various county committees are doing. Many times, perhaps, they have a personal knowledge of the applicant that enables them to judge the individual on a different basis than we are able to do in the regional office. On the other hand, with the great volume of applications we are handling, we must have a certain yardstick by which to measure our loans. We appreciate having your suggestions at any time. KARL M. BLANCHARD, Manager Memphis Loan Office."

Petition Filed in Gas Rate Case

Texarkana Voter Seeks to Enjoin City Council From Ordering Election

TEXARKANA.—In the gas rate controversy between Texarkana, Ark., and the Southern Cities Company, H. M. Barney, Texarkana attorney, as a voter and taxpayer, filed a petition in Chancery Court Tuesday to enjoin the City Council from ordering a referendum election on a compromise settlement of gas rates between the city and the Southern Cities Company nearly two years ago.

Following this settlement dissatisfied persons presented a petition to the City Council asking for a referendum election, but the request was refused. The petitioners then brought suit in Circuit Court to mandamus the council and won. The city appealed to the state Supreme Court, where judgement of the Circuit Court was affirmed.

The city took the case to the United States Supreme Court, where it was dismissed for want of jurisdiction. Later the state Supreme Court rendered an amended judgment calling attention to certain technical defects in the original petition filed with the City Council and intimating that the adjudication of the question could be properly disposed of only by the chancery Court. Recently proponents of the referendum, headed by Attorney Ben E. Carter, renewed their request to the City Council for a referendum but their request again was rejected. Barney's suit today is said to be for the purpose of forestalling another mandamus procedure which it is said the referendum supporters are preparing to file.

C. F. Routon to Be in Treasurer Race

Well Known Hope Man Enters County Campaign Tuesday

C. F. Routon, widely known Hope citizen, entered the campaign for county treasurer Wednesday. His announcement appears in the political column of today's Star.

Mr. Routon has been a resident of Arkansas for more than 30 years, and his entire business life has been devoted to the clerical work and management of one local enterprise.

This is the first bid for county elective office. His only previous public position has been a membership on the Hope School Board.

In filing for the Democratic nomination at the polls next August 3, Mr. Routon believes that his long service with the books of a private concern makes him especially qualified for the duties of the county treasurer, where the accounts of public tax funds are maintained.

Mr. Routon was a member of the Hope School Board for six years, and by virtue of his long service in private business in Hope is known to the voters of every precinct in the county.

His campaign for the treasurer'ship will be conducted on a platform promising simply good service and a business administration.

Condon Carries on Work in Kidnaping

Cuts Off His Telephone and Secretly Pursues Investigation

HOPEWELL, N. J.—(AP)—Dr. John F. Condon's early activities, as an intermediary in the Lindbergh kidnaping were recognized officially Tuesday as the 70-year-old "Jafsie" cut off his telephone and pursued secretly his efforts to re-establish contact with the abductors.

From police at the Lindbergh home came word that "no further negotiations nor resumed negotiations with the kidnapers have been reported to us, and nothing is known of any anticipated resumption."

Colonel Lindbergh himself was authority for the statement that "by means of newspaper advertisements and notes received from the kidnapers contact was maintained between the family and the kidnapers until final arrangements were made for the payment of the ransom by the intermediary in a Bronx (a borough of New York City) cemetery."

The retired educator was not mentioned by name, but it was clear that it was his work, including the advertisements signed "Jafsie," which made possible the negotiations culminating in the futile $50,000 ransom payment.

Both Dr. Condon and Colonel Henry Breckenridge, Lindbergh attorney, it was understood, conferred with Colonel H. Norman Schwarzkopf in New York Monday.

Colonel Schwarzkopf, who has admitted only that he saw Colonel Breckenridge, disclosed the conference was held in an apartment of Mrs. Dwight Morrow, mother of Mrs. Lindbergh.

"It was understood both Colonel and Mrs. Breckenridge visited Dr. Condon's home late in the day. Subsequently, Dr. Condon departed from his residence, but his household requested that he not be followed and that he be given every opportunity to conduct his task with secrecy."

"For the eighth consecutive day early editions of a morning paper carried the advertisement:

"What is wrong? Have you crossed me? Please, better directions, Jafsie."

"The night police bulletin told at length of the authorities' problem of sifting misleading 'tips' and said 'mail from foreign countries is still pouring in and the kidnapers and the baby at one time or another have been reported in almost every part of the world.'"

It was learned that a part of the day's police activity was the dispatch of detectives to the Morrow home at Englewood, N. J., to obtain statements from all the servants there.

A published report that Mrs. Lindbergh had collapsed was termed utterly false by an excellent source. A caller at the Lindbergh home during the day was her close friend, Mrs. John Crier Hibben, wife of the president of Princeton University.

"I brought a message and that is all I can say," Mrs. Hibben asserted afterward.

'Protectors' Out of Shanghai Area

Japanese-Supported Chinese Puppet Rule Dissolved After Complaints

SHANGHAI.—Shanghai's Japanese-supported Chinese puppet government, or the so-called "District Maintenance Committee," which functioned within the Japanese-occupied zone, has been dissolved, according to a communique from the Japanese naval headquarters Tuesday night.

Japanese consular officials are non-committal, but admitted that an attempt to create a puppet regime within the Japanese military lines was not found "conducive to peace and order." The real reason for the Japanese decision to abolish the regime apparently is due to the strong protest lodged with Japanese authorities last Saturday by the American consulate.

The American consular protest was inspired by the complaints of American companies that the Chinese puppet regime, with the apparent connivance of the Japanese military, was trying to force all firms with property in the Shanghai area to pay large sums of money under the guise of "protection."

One large American concern, which desired to remove a quantity of lumber and machinery from Shanghai, was notified that the property could not be moved unless the puppet regime were given $5,000. As a result, the American firm reported the incident to the consulate.

The so-called Chinese district committee was formed a fortnight ago, with the declared intention of establishing a municipal government within the Japanese zone similar to Japanese practice in Manchuria. The Nanking government, as well as Mayor Wu Teh-Chen, of the Chinese municipality of Greater Shanghai, immediately protested and issued warrants to arrest all concerned in the movement.

Robinson Presents Relief Program

Six Point Measure Discussed at Noon Luncheon Wednesday

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—A six point economic relief program was advanced Wednesday by Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas at a Jefferson day luncheon rally of the nation's leading democrats.

Rigid enforcement of the anti-trust laws, use of the American capital at home, non cancellation of foreign debts, re-establishment of higher commodity prices through disposition of the surpluses readjustment of domestic production and other processes were advanced by the democratic leader.

"The night police bulletin told at length of the authorities' problem of sifting misleading 'tips' and said 'mail from foreign countries is still pouring in and the kidnapers and the baby at one time or another have been reported in almost every part of the world.'"

60-Cent Ice

As warm weather draws near we have need of quick action if the city council's proposed reduction in the price of ice to benefit the consumers this summer.

Hope pays 60 cents a hundred for ice placed in domestic refrigerators. There used to be a 70-cent non-coupon price, but this was abolished at the close of the 1930 season a year and a half ago. The great bulk of ice sales were on the coupon price of 60 cents, anywhere. The abolition of the 70-cent price conferred few benefits upon the domestic consumers, who paid 60 cents a hundred then, and are paying 60 cents now.

This newspaper attempts to take a conservative position with regard to utilities. We believe the best interests of the public demand that service be put ahead of price. We never have "baited" utility companies just because it lies in the power of an unscrupulous newspaper to do so.

But the history of ice regulation gives us a clear right to suggest and demand that there be some reduction in the price to local consumers at this time. Our readers will recall that the ice companies of Arkansas have operated for the last three years under a law permitting the Railroad Commission to fix prices. The plants in Hope have enjoyed a uniform price of 60 cents a hundred to domestic consumers for the last three years.

It was represented by the ice companies themselves that when this regulatory law was put through the legislature a sustained price would enable them to reduce the cost to the consumers within a few years. The law has been in effect for more than three years—it is time we obtained that reduction.

This newspaper believes the price of ice should be regulated, but it does not believe that ice companies are public utilities. We fought the section of the regulatory bill which forbade the establishing of competitive ice plants, and this section was knocked out by the Arkansas Supreme Court.

Two years ago we contended that an ice company is not a true public utility because it has no pipe-lines or electric lines crossing public thoroughfares or entering upon private premises, such as electric light, gas and telephone companies, which are real public utilities. An ice company is no more a utility than this newspaper. The one serves the city with a fleet of delivery wagons. The other makes its contacts with a corps of carrier-boys—and neither concern is entitled to a utility status.

This same distinction—that an ice concern is not a true utility—is reiterated by the United States Supreme Court in a decision on an Oklahoma case this spring. Oklahoma enacted a law similar to Arkansas', regulating prices and forbidding new competition. A free-lance ice man set up a new plant. The state courts upheld him and voided the no-competition section of the ice law. And the federal Supreme Court upheld the view already taken by the Oklahoma and Arkansas Supreme Courts—that an ice company is not a true utility.

The regulation of prices, therefore, depends solely upon the satisfaction which domestic consumers obtain under it.
 And as we have pointed out, the ice companies of Arkansas themselves promised that regulated prices would lead to cheaper ice a few years after the law was in effect.

Three years have passed. It is time we demanded results from the Arkansas Railroad Commission, the rate-making bureau which is in charge of this experiment in price-regulation.

Where the Hazards Lie

THE accident to Captain Hawks emphasizes one of the most peculiar aspects of modern aviation—the fact that the moments of greatest danger usually come, not when a plane is high in the air, but when it is just leaving or just reaching the solid earth.

Too much can happen in a fraction of a second, at such times. When things go wrong while the plane is in flight, the pilot has time to take action to meet the emergency; all else failing, he can take to his parachute. But when an emergency develops during the takeoff or the landing there is nothing to do but cut the switch and breathe a prayer—if he has time.

The next great advance in aviation safety will probably come in some way of making the beginning and the ending of a flight less hazardous.

A Sane Sacrifice

It is perfectly obvious that the federal government cannot easily afford to pay a bonus now. Balancing the federal budget is a tough enough job as it is; it is hard to see how any unscrupulous American could insist on a bonus raid when the treasury is in its present shape.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XIII

AUNT JESSIE was going away.
 It was astonishing but true.
 Her sister who lived in a little town in southern Illinois had undergone a rather serious operation and was convalescing. She wanted Aunt Jessie to come.

"I declare, it doesn't seem right!"
 Aunt Jessie kept saying over and over. "It seems a pity you couldn't go and stay with the Miltons instead of having Rose come over here. But what with those cousins of theirs visiting from Des Moines I suppose we can't help it." She sighed again, frowning, folded her best Philippine nightgown and wrapped her bedroom slippers in tissue paper.

"I don't see why you make such a fuss," Susan said capably, trying to help and not succeeding very well. "You always say yourself that Rose is so sensible, and after all you won't be gone more than two weeks."

Aunt Jessie kept grumbling that it didn't seem right and she declared she was at her wits' end.
 But she went nevertheless. This was on a Sunday morning. After Susan had seen her aunt off at the dismal old station she came back to a house strangely empty and quiet. She walked through the prim, familiar rooms with the sensation of seeing them for the first time and when Rose came over to find her at a lazy, two o'clock dinner the kitchen rang with the sudden, foolish, irresistible laughter of two young things set free.

It was fun even to wash dishes with Rose. Susan hung weak with laughter, over a kitchen chair as her friend described with embellishment the peculiarities of the head of her department.

THAT was the beginning of Susan's real holiday. Of course she would have no actual vacation this year since she had only started to work, but it was enough for her at the moment to feel the exquisite importance of being mistress of her own domain.

There came, however, the inevitable d - when R. J., always popular and in demand, telephoned that she could not get home for dinner.
 "I see. Of course you must go.
 Have a good time and don't be too late. No, I won't leave the door open. You ring twice and I'll hear you." Susan's tone sounded cheerful but she hung up the receiver with a sense of dismay. The long summer evening stretched out endlessly before her.

She stood up to find Jack Waring twinkling at her.

"What's the matter? Somebody stand you up?" he bantered. Susan shook her head.

"The girl who's staying with me while my aunt is away has a date," she explained, hoping her voice didn't sound as forlorn as she felt.
 The man smiled.

"Come along with me," he said casually. "Some friends of mine are driving out to a place on the Milwaukee Road where they have grand music. I'll take good care of you and get you home early."

Susan hesitated. There was no denying it, the prospect was alluring. In addition, the man's tone and manner were so quietly reassuring, so nearly paternal that she felt rather silly as she demurred.

"Nonsense," Waring said briskly.
 "You just say 'no' as a matter of form without thinking. I can see that."

His conjecture was so close to the truth that Susan dashed. After all, wasn't it foolish of her to go home alone, eat an uninteresting and solitary supper and moon about waiting for Rose to return, when friendship, gaiety, music and laughter were hers for the stretching out of her hand? Irrationally she considered if this had been the way Eve felt about the serpent. Then she smiled and shrugged because the metaphor was so far-fetched. Jack Waring in his conservative dark suit, perfectly groomed and agreeably friendly, was as little like a serpent as anyone could possibly imagine. She was seized with an uncontrollable impulse. "I'll go," she said. "I'd love to."

He was so businesslike about it, all, putting her address down in his small notebook, that Susan handled as idiotic the suspicion that for an instant there had been a flash of triumph in his eyes. He was to call for her at seven. Much as she disliked the idea of the neighbors peering at his long, blue roadster with its shattering horn she insisted on this. For one thing she remembered Aunt Jessie's dictum, "If a man can't call for a girl at her own home then I say there's something wrong. These fly-by-nights who meet boys on street corners will come to no good." It was curious that Susan should think of this and be so insistent about it, because she had heard Aunt Jessie say it so many times and it had always irritated her.

SHE rushed homeward, impatient of the many delays. The westbound trolley seemed unusually slow and jerky. The conductor dropped the token she handed him, passengers fumbled their transfers,
 and at every cross town line there were maddening waits.

Why she was so excited at the prospect of an evening with Waring
 Susan could not have exactly said.
 Perhaps it was his reputation as a lady's man, gleaned from hints dropped by Pierson. Perhaps it was the memory of the dozen and one daily telephone calls which he received. Most of the voices were provocatively feminine. Susan could not help hearing Waring's part in some of these conversations.
 He called all of them "darling."
 She knew that and was a little contemptuous of it, believing in her young arrogance (and who shall say not rightly?) that the charming English term of endearment should be reserved for the chosen one instead of scattered to the crowd. But ever since the day when the man had shown such sympathetic understanding of her position—the day Mrs. Heath had so unmercifully snubbed her—Susan had come to take a more charitable view of him. After all, she argued, men couldn't all be alike.
 She began to feel that she had misunderstood Waring.

It was at this stage in her reflections that the car, jerking, wheezing, and groaning, reached her corner and she was glad to alight, finding the air under the locust trees of her own block much more agreeable than that of the trolley.

In her own room, she wriggled out of her clothes and ran the tub almost to the brim. She was glad

Rose had given her those geranium scented bath crystals for her birthday. It was her favorite scent. If everything had irked her on the homeward ride now everything seemed suddenly right. How lucky it was that her flowered chiffon, her only "party" dress worthy of the name, had been returned from the cleaners the day before! How lucky it was she had washed her hair Monday night! How lucky she was to have a natural wave, instead of the summer heat so that all she had to do was press her fingers into the little ridges to make her head a dark, shining, cap of undulation!

SHE was ready long before seven o'clock. While she waited she began to feel the agitation of a diver about to take the great plunge. Her mind revolved in busy whirligigs. What if Aunt Jessie should happen in without warning?
 What if Mrs. McLeod who always watched the goings and comings of the neighborhood from behind her starched curtains should spread the rumor that Susan Carey was becoming "fast"? Susan shuddered.
 To be "fast" in the little community where she lived was to be quite beyond the pale. Although Chicago is a metropolis, in its neighborhood groups there exists much of the spirit of the average small town.

Susan's reverie was interrupted by the sharp peal of the door bell.
 She caught up her gloves in a hurry and for the hundredth time wished she had a proper summer evening wrap instead of the wretched old black coat from last season. She opened the door with fingers that shook a little.

There he stood, seeming taller than usual, and, as always, perfectly turned out.
 Susan closed the door of the cottage primly behind her. Aunt Jessie had always told her that a lady never receives a gentleman at home alone. Waring smiled suddenly as if he caught the reason for her abrupt gesture.

"I won't bite, you know," he said with mild gallantry and Susan went scarlet. It was unamusing to be so transparent.

As she ran down the steps with her escort she forgot everything in her sudden surprise. There, jauntily perched in the rumble seat, a faded looking young man at her side, sat Ray Flannery.

"Hello," chirped Ray. "I'm staring. Let's step on it!"

Memories

We will not keep among our memories
The weariness and pain, the haunting fears,
But the sweet things of youth we will remember—
Its joys and not its tears.
The hopes, the dreams, the glad adventuring, Laughter and love—these, like "the green and flowery"
And all the loveliness of star and cloud,
Shall be forever ours.
And when, in that far twilight of our lives,
We sit with calmly folded hands and seem
To sleep, we shall be running with the wind
And dancing in our dream.

will be glad to chip in a dime apiece to keep us in session," and the galleries applauded.

Evans, of Ponce, denounced Governor Parnell and others who attended the conference Tuesday night at which the dissolution proclamation was issued and characterized their action as "disgraceful and shameful."

While acting as speaker, Cannon refused to accept a copy of the governor's proclamation from Secretary of State Ed F. McDonald. The house cheered his action. Later, Mason ruled Coach, of Cross, out of order when he suggested a copy of the proclamation was on the desk. "The point is not well taken," Mason said. "The chair holds there is no such proclamation."

It was the expressed stand of the house that it had never been officially notified of the proclamation, and therefore was in session under the governor's call for a special session.

Mason was to appoint a committee during the afternoon to draft a bill cutting down salaries of county officials. Other members were busy preparing bills seeking other economies, both in the state and county governments.

Report to Governor

At the request of the presiding officer of each house of the General Assembly, Governor Parnell Tuesday night issued a proclamation adjourning the special session sine die because of the disagreement of the House and Senate as to the time for adjournment.

Governor Parnell signed the proclamation in his office shortly after 9 p. m. after Gov. Lawrence E. Wilson and Speaker Irvin C. Neale had conferred with him at his home relative to the apparent deadlock between the two houses. His action following a conference with several Little Rock attorneys concerning the legality of the adjournment proclamation. They agreed that the constitution was plain in setting out the power vested in the governor to end any legislative session and cited Section 20 of Article 6 which reads as follows:

"In case of disagreement between the two houses of the General Assembly, at a regular or special session with respect to the time of adjournment, the governor may, if the facts be certified to him by the presiding officers of the two houses, adjourn them to a time not beyond the day of their next meeting; and, on account of danger from an enemy or disease, to such other place of safety as he may think proper."

Some Legislators Criticized

Members of the legislature received news of the governor's proclamation last night with varying degrees of criticism and commendation.

A majority of those favoring extension of the session were bitter in criticism of the governor and many expressed their intention to hold a "mass meeting" at the House today, if they find that they are barred from taking any action officially as legislators.

Several attorneys were of the opinion that the special session was adjourned automatically when the two houses failed to vote by a two-thirds majority to extend the session. They cited the following section of the constitution to prove their point:

Another Section Cited.

"The governor may, by proclamation, on extraordinary occasions convene the General Assembly at the seat of government, or at a different place, if that shall have become since their last adjournment dangerous from an enemy or contagious disease; and he shall specify in his proclamation the purpose for which they are convened, and no other business than that set forth therein shall be transacted until the same shall have been disposed of; after which they may, by a two-thirds of all the members elected to both houses, entered upon their journals, remain in session not exceeding 15 days.

The certification of the disagreement and request for adjournment made by the two presiding officers follows:

"We, Lawrence E. Wilson, president of the Senate, and Irvin C. Neale, speaker of the House of Representatives, do hereby certify that there is a disagreement between the two houses of the General Assembly at this special session with respect to the time of adjournment.

"Witness our hands this 12th day of April, 1932."

It was signed by each of the officers in the presence of Guy A. Freeling, secretary to the governor; a representative of the attorney general's office and Secretary of State Ed F. McDonald.

Governor Parnell then issued the proclamation which sets forth that since the business for which the session had been called was disposed of and since the two officers had certified to him that the disagreement existed, he would adjourn the session under the power of Article 6, Section 20. The proclamation was signed by the governor and Mr. McDonald.

Governor Parnell said Tuesday night that, until he studied the refunding bill passed by the General Assembly, he could not say definitely whether he would sign the measure but that he believed the bill was a good bill and as good as could have been obtained by the present legislature. He denied a report that he would veto the bill because of the inclusion of the amendment which excludes certain road improvement districts.

The text of the governor's proclamation follows:

"Whereas, the General Assembly was convened by me in extraordinary session on the 12th day of March, 1932, for certain purposes; and

"Whereas, the business for which it was convened has been disposed of; and

"Whereas, the president of the Senate and the speaker of the House of Representatives of said General Assembly have certified to me that there is a disagreement between the two houses as to the time of adjournment of such special session:

"Now, therefore, I, Harvey Parnell, governor of the state of Arkansas, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by Article 6, Section 20 of the constitution of the state, do hereby proclaim the General Assembly adjourned to its next regular meeting."

Talks of Impeachment

Cannon of Hempstead said he has prepared 19 articles of impeachment against the governor and that he will attempt to present them to the House this morning before the governor's proclamation can be read to that body.

He expressed the belief that the proclamation dissolving the session will not become effective until it is read to both branches of the General Assembly.

Other members of both houses expressed a different opinion, contending that issuance of the proclamation and the filing of it in the secretary of state's office, which was done Tuesday night, automatically dissolved the session and that neither branch of the legislature could meet officially Wednesday.

Many of the members of both houses took the situation good naturedly and expressed the belief that "it was the best way out of it," since, they said, there apparently was no hope of agreement on the extension or adjournment questions.

Representative Kenneth Coffelt of Faulkner county, before learning of the governor's proclamation, made a radio talk Tuesday night, urging the people of the state to request their senators to change their attitude and censure in the House resolution for an extension of the session.

He reviewed what he termed "illegal and deplorable" procedure of the state Banking Department, Revenue Department and the attorney general's office. He explained that he believed it was the sincere desire of more than a two-thirds majority of the House to enact measures to cut down state expenditures, including salaries of state officials and employees.

Caucus at 9 A. M.

Several House members, opposing the adjournment, called a caucus of their membership at 9 a. m. Wednesday at the Hotel Marion to discuss a course of action. They also said they would be in the House chamber at 10 a. m., the hour to which the House recessed.

Cannon of Hempstead, Evans of Pope and a few others were sponsoring the House caucus.

The deadlock on the question of an extension came late Tuesday when the House voted, 82 to 7, to continue in session to effect economies in state government, and the Senate rejected the House extension resolution, 17 to 12.

All business specified in the governor's call for the special session was completed Tuesday when the Senate passed without amendment the House road district bond refunding bill and the House passed Senator Norfleet's bill to permit levee districts to pay landowners in bonds for land needed as right of way for levees to be built by the federal government.

Negro Confesses Postal Burglary

Tells Officers of Breaking Into Pulaski Heights Branch March 23

LITTLE ROCK—Charley Cole, negro, arrested Monday night by Patrolmen George Hansen and Butch Tuesday not only confessed to burglarizing a house occupied by a negro recently, but also admitted he broke into the Pulaski Heights branch of the postoffice, police said.

The postoffice branch was entered the night of March 23 and a police report indicated that only 800 pennies were stolen. Cole told Major Pitcock, chief of the Detective Bureau, that in addition to the pennies he stole many stamps.

The officers arrested Cole for investigation. In his pockets they found four letters, one addressed to a firm of rare coin buyers and another to a tear gas company. Both letters bore stamps of various denominations. The letters were opened yesterday morning and many other stamps were found. The letter to the tear gas company contained $1.75 in stamps for a sample tear gas fountain pen. Cole was supplying for the agency here.

With the stamps in their possession, the police questioned Cole about the postoffice burglary and he quickly confessed.

Municipal Judge Harb Tuesday held him to the grand jury on charges of burglary and grand larceny, and it was said to be likely the postal authorities will prefer charges against the negro.

War Veterans at Capitol in Plea for Bonus

Despite administration opposition, 1000 members of the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and the United American Veterans of the World War marched up Capitol Hill in Washington and petitioned Congress to pay the remaining 50 per cent of the soldiers' bonus. They demanded an appropriation of $2,000,000,000 for this purpose. This picture shows massed colors on the Capitol steps, with petitions piled in the foreground.

HOPE'S WEEKLY BUSINESS REVIEW

Plant Beds Must Undergo Inspection

Sweet Potato Growers Offer Plants for Sale Must Be Careful

ROCK—(P)—All commercial sweet potato plants will be inspected this spring and beds found to be infested with disease will be destroyed, said Mr. Miller, chief inspector of the Plant Board, said.

On account of the cheapness of sweet potatoes, said Mr. Miller, and the demand for plants last year, many growers will be in the plant business in a commercial way for the first time this year, and it seems probable that many of these will be careless in their methods and hence increase the serious disease troubles.

Only disease free and carefully selected plants should be used to grow sweet potatoes. The beds made with plants never before used for growing sweet potatoes or sweet potato plants, and where there will be no drainage from a sweet potato field or storage bin.

In the most other southern states, sweet potatoes do not require that all sweet potato beds be certified as free from disease. Instead the plant inspectors in the manner set out above, inspecting the heavy expense to the state which would be entailed under a compulsory system.

Batter Up! They Stay Out of School to Eat Flapjacks

No chance for a light lunch in this home. For when Mrs. Billie Patterson of Seattle, Wash., calls her brood of nine children in for lunch it takes 100 flapjacks to fill them up. Mrs. Patterson was haled into court for not keeping the children in school, but the court allowed her to keep them at home for the present when she explained her husband is ill and she cannot get them all ready in time. She is sole support of the family now. The kids also possess five dogs and a cat, who get a share of the flapjacks when there are any.

Denver Youth's Stunt on Wire Causes Death

DENVER—(P)—Enrico Sabello, 14, headed across the Twentieth Street viaduct toward a theater with a group of friends Tuesday night.

"Wait a minute," he called, "and I'll show you a stunt."

His companions paused. Enrico showed his pals he could climb. First it was the railing. Then a heavy wire caught his interest. He swung upon it. There was a flash of electricity. The boy fell 14 feet to a building below. He was dead when police arrived.

Mothers! If Your Child Is Kept Out of the School Swimming tank because of ATHLETE'S FOOT

What Are You Doing About It?

Are you trusting to the teachers and the school nurse to cure him? Or are you seeing to it yourself that he gets the proper medication?

Are you taking measures to safeguard the rest of the family—including yourself—from infection? Athlete's Foot, remember, is very catching.

See that your child soaks his feet thoroughly with Emerald Oil BEFORE and AFTER his bath, and that he treats his feet with it regularly every night and morning.

Don't let him run around barefoot, especially in the bathroom. Sterilize the tub after him, and the bathroom floor. Don't let him put on any one else's shoes or stockings. Boil the sheets from his bed.

Have the rest of the family use plenty of Emerald Oil on their feet as a precautionary measure. Use it yourself.

One bottle of Emerald Oil is guaranteed to end every symptom of Athlete's Foot or money back. Ward & Son and all other first-class druggists sell it with that guarantee. Adv.

Much Interest In Local Boxing Bouts

Three Fast Bouts and Battle Royal Were Held Tuesday Night

According to those in charge of the boxing programs being held recently in connection with the regular picture programs at the Seenger theater on Tuesday nights, interest in this feature is continually growing.

On Tuesday's card, three rounds of boxing and a battle royal were scheduled and completed.

The battle royal, was sensational as is always the case with this form of amusement.

In the first bout of the evening Rowe won a decision over Breeding. This bout was not sensational but was a good clean fight from bell to bell.

Harper in the second bout knocked his opponent out of the ring at one time. This was a fast bout and both fighters gave the crowd several thrills throughout their performance.

The feature bout of the evening ended in a decision for Sherman Roberts of Hope, over Johnson, Texarkana fighter. This decision was questioned by several in the audience and resulted in a challenge for the reappearance of this pair on Tuesday night, April 26.

Next week the promoters are expecting to have a number of fighters from Fulton on the program and a large crowd of fans are expected to attend.

American Legion For Bonus Payment

Telegram Sent Representatives in Congress by Local Post

The American Legion post of Hope sent the following telegram to Senator Joe T. Robinson, Tillman B. Parks and to Henry L. Stevens, Tuesday morning.

This Post of over two hundred members after serious deliberation directs that I urge your support of Wright Patman's bill for payment in full of amounts rightfully due ex-service men on compensation certificates.

Tallulah Starts a New Fan Fad

Here is Tallulah Bankhead, Hollywood film star, and the new fan which she has made. A lot of the most beautiful and the most beautiful worked by hand, causes the propeller to revolve, giving a breeze quite similar to the one generated by the ordinary electric fan. It's an old Spanish-American custom.

Charlie Chaplin, Riding High

Maybe he was getting ideas for his next film comedy. Anyhow, wouldn't Charlie Chaplin have looked funny if he's taken his derby hat, trick cane and floppy shoes with him when he got on that camel's back? As it was, Charlie was a serious-minded tourist, out for a visit to the pyramids of Gizeh, Egypt, when this picture was taken.

Babe Ruth Opens With Pair Homers

Carey Selph Stars as New Member Chicago White Sox Tuesday

Babe Ruth and the New York Yankees opened the 1932 American League season at Philadelphia Tuesday by vanquishing George Earnshaw and the champion Athletics 12 to 6.

The Yanks fell on Earnshaw's pitching and drove him from the box with eight hits and ten runs in the first four innings. Ruth pulled out two home runs, and got a total of three hits in five times at bat. He drove in five runs.

Al Simmons, batting champion of both major leagues, got three hits in four times at bat, and Jimmy Fox, his teammate, got three out of five—but Earnshaw had given away too great an advantage for the Athletics' batmen to overcome the Yankees' lead.

Carey Selph, former Ouachita college star and recently second most valuable player in the Texas League while a member of the Houston club, made his bow in the majors as third baseman for the Chicago White Sox. Selph got three hits in five times at bat and helped the Sox to defeat the St. Louis Browns 9 to 2.

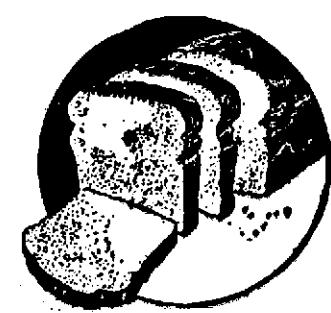

In the National League, Flint Rhem opened the 1932 season by pitching the St. Louis Cards, world champions, to a 10-2 victory over Pittsburgh. Rhem was the starting pitcher for St. Louis in the opening games of 1926, 1928, 1930 and 1931—in all of which St. Louis copped the pennant.

GLAD IRONERS

The "sad iron" of years past has given away to the GLAD one with self-contained ELECTRIC HEAT provided by power from your municipally owned plant. Clothes almost ironed themselves under the smooth, even heat of the Electric Iron. So automatic is their service that the most modern irons have automatic devices for shutting off the current when a set temperature is reached. Others adjust their temperatures to particular fabrics, at a finger touch. No matter what kind of electric iron you use, electric service is on duty ironing day, and every day—ready to spring into service the instant you snap the switch that summons them.

The electric iron smooths away the wrinkles in a deft manner that makes this age-old job a JOY! Their ironing pleases the most exacting home-maker, for the more exacting she is, the better they work.

Mills Asks Changes in Tax Bill

Warning the Senate Finance Committee not to impose burdensome taxes that would "suck out of productive enterprises" huge sums of working capital, Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills is shown here (indicated by arrow) as he appeared at the hearing on the House tax bill. He held that the current revenue measure tended to retard business recovery by placing the full weight of its provisions upon industrial capital.

"A friend of mine, seeing how miserable I was, told me to try Cardui. I have never ceased to be grateful, for I felt better from the time I began taking it."

"I kept on taking Cardui until I felt well and strong. I was less nervous and was soon enjoying good health."

U. of A. Track Team Hard Hit This Year

Ineligibility Is Claimed Cause of Poor Showing for Second Year

FAYETTEVILLE.—(P)—The University of Arkansas track team has been hit hard by ineligibility for the second straight year.

Last year Ivan Jackson of Hazen was ruled ineligible and this season W. C. Whitfield, Jr., of Lonoke, and Forrest Annen, of Hot Springs, will not compete for the same reason.

Arkansas opened the 1933 season in Clarksville in a triangular affair with the College of the Ozarks and Hendrix men and took them all on the initial trip.

The squad consisted of Captain Leslie Nations, of Prairie Grove; Tom Murphy, Batesville; Ivan Jackson, Hazen; Bill McLeod, Pine Bluff; Robert Austin, Eudora; Judson Erwin, McGehee; Howard Jake, Fayetteville; James Sexton, Mt. Judea; Oliver Holmes, El Dorado; Henry Phillips, DeQueen; Earl Bower, Piggott; Floyd Clardy, Hot Springs; Ben Dees Poca-hontas; Bill Coleman, Nashville; Charles Eanders, Fayetteville; Ruben Greenberg, Brooklyn, N.
